Dear Betty:

I am sending a messenger to complain to you over the fact that you never write me letters any more. This is all the more galling as I have word that others are more favored in this respect than I.

However, please treat the ^{*}bearer of this letter with kindness as he is a very old friend of mine, and anything you can do for him will be deeply appreciated.

Also, he is very discreet and you can tell him anything you want and it will go no further than you want.

Most of your friends are still living. Poor Joe is getting pretty feeble, but the rest of us seem to be surviving.

Sincerely,

25 YEAR RE-REVIEW
